STATE LAND BOARD HOLDS "DRY" MEETING

The state land board had a meeting this morning that was dry enough to belong under the jurisdiction of the desert land board instead. It was hearing the application of T. M. Anderson, et al., for the cancellation of a certificate of sale issued by the state land board to B. Boswell to certain lands in section 36, township 39 south of range 7 west. Anderson claims to have a portion of the lands so granted located as a quartz claim at the time the sale was made, and asks the sale be cancelled. The jury was not called by him to be cancelled. There was an array of attorneys and consequently things moved slowly on. There was also a crowd of witnesses and interested parties. If the taking of testimony is concluded by night the board will be fortunate.

JUDGE JACKSON WANTS DETECTIVE ABEL TO RETURN

New Castle, Ind., June 2.—Circuit Judge Jackson declared here this afternoon that if Detective Abel would return to New Castle and give sufficient evidence against Dr. W. A. Winters and wife to warrant such action, he would appoint a special prosecutor to replace or assist Prosecutor Meyers. Abel left New Castle yesterday following a tilt with Meyers and after he had sworn to an affidavit, charging Winters and W. H. Cooper, a telegraph operator with responsibility of the disappearance of Catherine Winters, the physician's missing daughter. Abel insists that Catherine was murdered.

Detective Abel was said to be in Columbus today. Prosecutor Meyers exhibited today an anonymous letter which he received from Cincinnati.

CASES ARE CONTINUED.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 2.—Cases against Charles S. McKelvey and W. H. Stevens, attorneys accused of trying to blackmail Judge W. H. Evans of Monrovia and Jule McBratney of El Centro, by threatening to expose alleged visits to notorious houses here, lodged visits to a notorious house here, States district court until tomorrow. A crowded calendar was assigned as the reason.

FURTHER EMBARGO ORDERED.

Washington, June 2.—It was stated on good authority here this afternoon that a further embargo against the shipment of arms from America to Mexico had been ordered by one of the executive departments. The embargo order, however, failed to reach New York in time, it was said, to prevent the sailing of the Astoria with arms and ammunition for the constitutionalists.

England's Ulster is uncomfortably warm this weather.

COOK IS GONE WITH COIN

SALEMITES FLEECED BY CROOK

Former Real Estate Dealer Cutting the Wind for Parts Unknown—Was An Active Cherrian—Reported Robbed.

"Cook" is a synonym for Cook, according to the erstwhile friends of A. B. Cook, the long and lanky ex-real estate man, active Cherrian member and a smooth gentleman who succeeded nicely in fleecing about twenty Salemites out of good round dollars, the final act occurring last Friday and Saturday. Just where Cook is, is not known, but suffice it to say he is cutting the wind to parts unknown with at least $500 on his person and equipped with the best outfit of clothes, shoes, jewelry, suit cases, fishing tackle and cigars that has gone out of Salem in many a day.

It appears that Cook deposited something like a thousand dollars in checks in the U. S. National and the Bush banks last Friday. The clever fellow was not suspected of crookedness, but was looked upon as being upright and honest. He went to clothing stores and men's furnishing shops and got fitted to suit his taste; he beat Hauser Brothers, the sporting goods men, out of some fine fishing goods; he bought suitcases enough to stock up a rich tourist planning a trip to India, and before he quit he bought about everything there was to buy. Results are that the following business houses are out of money: P. Light, tailor, $40; Shaw Bros., tailors, $34.50; George Will, pianist, loss unknown; Patterson pool room, loss unknown; Josse & Moore, $25; Hauser Bros., sporting goods, $90; Toggery, $35; A. Duge & Sons, grocers, $80; Kraft, grocer, $40; Roy Melson, $85; J. G. Smith, jeweler, $25; total, $380.50.

In Bad Actor.

It is said by the police that Cook has turned stunts of the kind before. He claimed he was robbed of $17 several months ago. A letter on file at the police station shows that the alleged robbery was merely a bluff to lead his debtors to believe that he had met with an unfortunate accident. He claimed also that he had been at one time a great detective. Investigation proved that he had not been in active secret service. Cook's real estate business went sky high and he was on the ragged edge of nothing before he started in with his check-leaving game. He used the names of two leading banks in the east to get on the good side of the local banks, and apparently his crooked dealings were not suspected until he lined out with the goods.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

The Squirrels Have a Jolly Peanut Hunt.

One Old Squirrel Found the Peanuts.

JACK and Evelyn had enjoyed a peanut hunt that afternoon at a children's party they had gone to. They told daddy about it when he came home. He told them that he had heard of a peanut hunt the squirrels once had.

"That sounds more fun than even ours was," said Evelyn, "for one always thinks of squirrels enjoying peanuts so much. In fact, any kind of a nut makes a squirrel happy."

"A little girl named Polly," began daddy, "lived near a park. In this park were a great many squirrels. They were principally gray, with great, long bushy tails, and they were very tame. Polly had often fed them peanuts, but she thought it would be lots of fun to have a real peanut hunt."

"So one afternoon she invited three of her best friends to join her, and together they went to the park."

"Each child had a bag of peanuts, and they ran around just as quickly as they could hiding the peanuts and gently driving the squirrels away if they went near a hiding place. One little girl would sit on a bench so the squirrels could come and look inside the bag she held. That gave the others a good opportunity for hiding them."

"When they were all hidden the little girl threw away her bag. There were now over so many squirrels gathered about, and when they looked and saw no peanuts in the bag they were so disappointed, and yet they were sure that they had smelt them and so did not give up all hope."

"Then one very old fat squirrel found three peanuts hidden under a rock. He called to the other squirrels and waved his bushy tail in the air, trying to say: There are peanuts if we will hunt for them!"

"And then it seemed to dawn on the other squirrels that it was a peanut hunt being given for them. But this certainly did seem to be what all those peanuts hidden so plentifully and so near at hand must mean."

"Such a hurrying and scurrying as there was and how the little friends of Polly did enjoy it. Polly knew it would be a success, for she was so fond of squirrels and thought they were very bright and clever."

"The squirrels didn't stop to eat the peanuts after they discovered that there were so many hidden. They just kept on getting more and more until finally they had succeeded in finding them all."

"Then they began to carry the peanuts to their little homes, and they looked so happy, just as if they were free from cares or worries for days to come. For, of course, they didn't have to worry about meals forever and ever so long with the wonderful supply they now had on hand."

PRINCE MIRKO IS "IN BAD"

MAY BE EXILED FROM HIS HOME.

King Nicholas, of Montenegro, Is Furious, and Queen of Italy Is Scandalized Over Affairs in Royal Family.

Rome, June 2.—It is doubtful if another prince in Europe is in such thorough disfavor at quite so many courts today as Mirko, a younger son of King Nicholas of Montenegro. Announcement that his wife had sued him at Nice for divorce capped the climax. It was said there were even threats of exile for the offender to some obscure place on a small allowance and under threat that even that would be cut off if he transgressed again in the slightest degree.

Mirko has long been known as a wild young man. He was a confirmed Riviera frequenter and continually involved in sensational escapades. Finally he succeeded in running up gambling debts which he could not pay, and his creditors asked his sister, the queen of Italy, for their money. It was said she paid, making it a condition that Mirko was to behave himself strictly in the future.

Goes From Bad to Worse.

The prince, however, went from bad to worse. The divorce proceedings referred only to his "eccentricities," but report had it that these eccentricities were of a highly discreditable kind.

King Nicholas naturally is furious. The queen of Italy, who is noted for her regard for the proprieties, is scandalized. The czar of Russia, who takes so lively an interest in Montenegro that he makes a financial allowance to Nicholas, is incensed that discreditable should be brought on its reigning house by Mirko's performances.

MT. LASSEN CRATER

STILL SPOUTS FIRE

Redding, Cal., June 2.—Eruption from the new crater at the summit of Mount Lassen was again visible today from the town of Mineral, 18 miles from Redding. There was an apparent cessation for a few hours at noon yesterday but the eruption could be plainly seen again at twilight last evening. It was believed here that a shift in the wind probably obscured the smoke from view at Mineral early in the afternoon yesterday.

When Forest Ranger Abbey approached the spot Sunday he was unable to get close enough to study the volcano but was positive the eruption came from a newly formed crater.

NO DAMAGE DONE.

Sacramento, Cal., June 2.—Information received by State Forester Hammett today indicates that the distribance comes from a crater. Sand and rocks have been scattered about for a great distance, according to Forest Supervisor Rushing. No great damage has been done, however.
